

RELATÓRIO INTERNACIONALIZAÇÃO

Nome: Mestranda Angela Bruna Luchese Sari () Professor (x) Estudante
Tipo de atividade: (x) Visita técnica () Missão de estudos () Mobilidade acadêmica (x) Participação em evento () Pós doutorado
Data: 08 a 16 de outubro de 2023
Local: A visita técnica foi realizada no Central Middlesex Hospital e a Conferência promovida pela ASCN UK foi realizada no Hilton Brighton Metropole em Londres Inglaterra.
Professor que recebeu na Inglaterra: Jennifer Burch - Chefe da Educação das Enfermeiras Gastrointestinais da Universidade do Noroeste de Londres Healthcare NHS Foundation Trust Objetivos: <input type="checkbox"/> Participar do evento anual promovido pela Associação de Enfermeiras Estomaterapeutas (ASCN-UK) do Reino Unido, cujo tema para o ano de 2023 foi “Fazendo ondas e influenciando a prática”. <input type="checkbox"/> Interagir com enfermeiras de diferentes instituições internacionais sobre o assunto da estomaterapia, suas atualidades, dificuldades e perspectivas futuras. <input type="checkbox"/> Conhecer as tecnologias, produtos e marcas que estão disponíveis para os cuidados com a pessoa que convive com estomia de eliminação. <input type="checkbox"/> Acompanhar as Consultas do Enfermeiro ao paciente que possui estomia (pré-operatório e pós-operatório) no St Mark's Hospital. <input type="checkbox"/> Compreender a organização do atendimento do “time de enfermeiros” aos pacientes com estomia. <input type="checkbox"/> Conhecer protocolos e fluxograma de atendimento de enfermagem ao paciente que possui estomia.
Atividades realizadas: - Participação de três dias na Conferência anual das Enfermeiras Estomaterapeutas do Reino Unido. - Visita ao Hospital St Mark's, considerado um hospital de referência para o tratamento de patologias intestinais e colorretais. - Visita ao Museu Florence Nightingale.
Publicações: https://www.udesc.br/noticia/pos_em_enfermagem_da_udesc_oeste_faz_missoes_de_estudos_em_paises_europeus
Registros fotográficos:

Nightingale's final bedroom

This photograph of Nightingale was taken at her home in South Street, in 1910. It is thought to be the last photograph taken of her. Lizzie Caswall Smith, a noted female photographer of the era captured the image and it is understood to be the only photographic session she conducted outside her studio, where other subjects included suffragettes Millicent Fawcett and Christabel Pankhurst.

As Nightingale reached the end of her life we know from her letters that she reflected upon who she met, what she achieved, and what her legacy would be. We welcome you to this recreation of Nightingale's final bedroom. Once you have explored this space please progress to the next room to discover some of the many aspects of Nightingale's legacy.

THE NIGHTINGALE FUND.

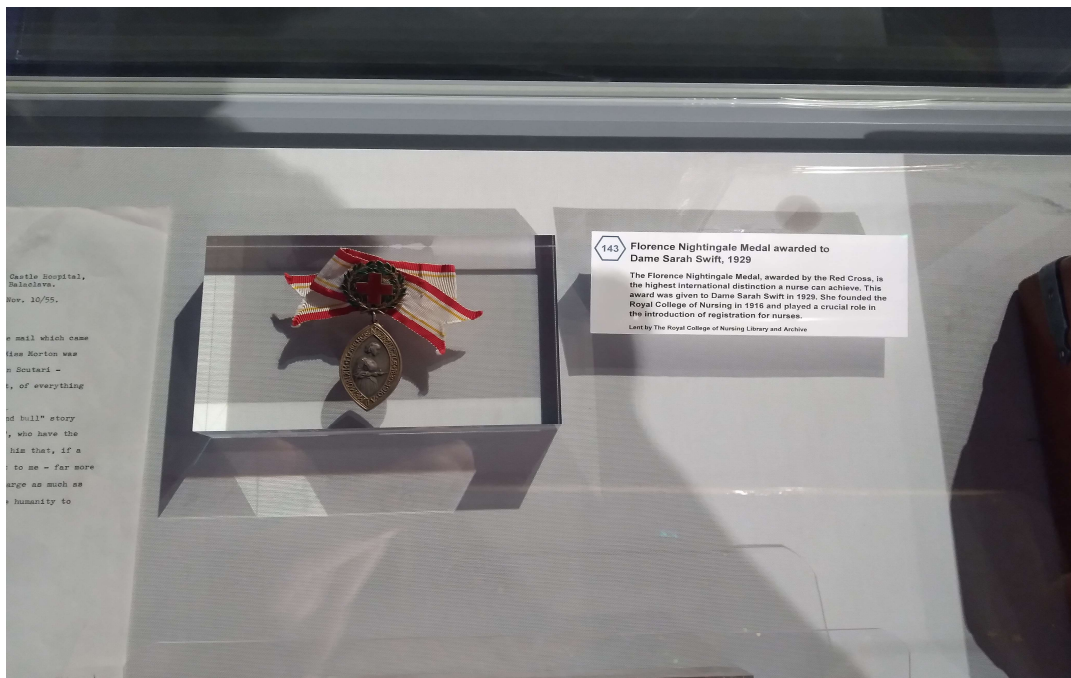

THE signal services rendered by Miss NIGHTINGALE to the sick and wounded of the British Forces in the East, have excited throughout the Country a universal desire to testify by some marked and substantial acknowledgment, the gratitude and admiration of the British people.

But Miss NIGHTINGALE has nobly refused to accept any testimonial from which she could derive personal advantage of any description: while it is ascertained that the tribute most in harmony with her feelings and wishes, would be to afford further scope for her disinterested exertions by placing under her immediate superintendence the establishment of an Institution for the reception, protection, and training, of Hospital Nurses and Assistants, the inestimable blessings of the system she has introduced, may be extended generally to the Poor, who may be suffering from any accident.

For this object a public appeal has been made, to which the noble, generous, and the benevolent, have liberally responded. But it is felt, that it should not be denied to any class to manifest the sympathy all should entertain towards their devoted and high-minded Countrywomen. In such situations, however small, of those who are dependent upon their benefactors, have a peculiar fitness when given for an object by which the poor are to be exclusively benefited; while it is certain the widow's mite, of equal value in the estimation of Miss NIGHTINGALE, with the gifts of the great and the affluent.

According to these views, the Proprietors of this Establishment have given for a Subscription Book to be opened in the Conning House contributions however small, will be received and recorded; and collected will be transmitted to the Committee and advertised as donations of the Workmen and others in this Establishment.

December 26th 1855.

Castle Hospital,
Belgrade.
Nov. 10/55.

The mail which came from the East was a Soutari - a, of everything

and "bull" story who have the him that, if a
to me - far more large as much as humanity to 143

Florence Nightingale Medal awarded to Dame Sarah Swift, 1929

The Florence Nightingale Medal, awarded by the Red Cross, is the highest international distinction a nurse can achieve. This award was given to Dame Sarah Swift in 1929. She founded the Royal College of Nursing in 1916 and played a crucial role in the introduction of registration for nurses.

Lent by The Royal College of Nursing Library and Archive

